

Mastering English Communication

Introduction

This course is essentially skills-based, offering students varied opportunities to develop their four language skills-reading, writing listening and speaking. The course materials offer a wide range of text types [literary, discursive, descriptive and factual], followed by learner-centered activities. The course focuses on enlarging students' vocabulary through word building skills; extensive practice in creative, reflective and academic writing with emphasis on the process of writing process -prewriting, organizing, composing, revising, and editing; developing speaking and listening skills through activities that are overtly built into the material to guide students in their actualization of these skills. They are supported by the inclusion of the mechanics of speech [stress, intonation, phonetics] with grammar [ proper sentence structure, punctuation marks, prepositions] that supports these skills and facilitates in proficiency and accuracy not only in academic but also professional field
